

What What?It seems that satellite radio could someday play a role during times of threatened national security. Why dilute this tool? Would you even begin thinking about limiting the content of HAM radio operators to local events?